The time of the disturbance was 5:10, and insted at least 45 seconds. Some alleged perts on such phenomena insist that it is twice as long. Opinions vary as to the station of the vibrations. The Weather reau officials say it was from east to st, but a great many citizens claim it is from north to south. Others hold to liagonal, northwest to southeast theory, it still others contend that the movement is from southwest to northeast. hrown down by the shock.

A daughter of the pastor, Rev. Ch. F. Stark, showed a Post-Dispatch reporter the inside of the church. Several cracks on both sides of the church. Several cracks on both sides of the choir celling are visible, and the building is evidently damaged very seriously at the Eighth street end—the front. The Holy Ghost congregation is building a new church in the West End, and this structure, put up in 1834, is soon to be given over to business uses.

Mrs. Anna Horrocks, living two doors from the Holy Ghost, on Walnut, said to the reporter that the shock was very sharp and severe, ringing the door bell and creating the idea of burglars, murderers and all kinds of awful things. She heard the cracking of the church walls distinctly. Fourth District patrolmen report that the shocks were pianly felt in that part of the city and nearly every one was awakened, many rushing out of their homes in their night garments. No damage was reported. The shock caused considerable alarm in the Third District and the people fied in thear from the ricketty tenements along Seventh, Eighth and Carr and Biddle streets. No damage was reported, although the old buildings were given a lively shaking up.

They started with one accord, and ran pelimell cown the stairs into the lobby, and were punting for the sidewalk when the night derk's composure and merriment over their siarm stopped the stampede.

At the, Rest Hotel, near the corner of Broadway and Chestnut, a leather-lunged guest on the top floor yelled out in stentorian tones: "Roll out, boys; the house is falling in! Git, for God's sake!"

There was a general bustle among the lodgers, as the building was vibrating badly, being a mere box of a structure and very old.

The big clock on the south wall of the building fell to the floor. The switchboards on the east end of the building swayed to and fro. When the clock fell G. W. Henry grabbed his hat and coat and started down stairs. The others followed.

No information has yet been obtained at the Weather Bureau as to the territory over which the earthquake was felt, but it is probable that it was felt along the entire Mississippi Valley. The night force in the Western Union Telegraph office felt the shock sc distinctly that there was a panic. The operators left their instruments and ran down the steps. Some of them reached the street before the disturbance subsided. When they returned they explained that they only wanted to see what damage was done outside.

Fitzsimmons Did Not Try to Avoid Arrest and Seems Anxious to Escape Fighting.

In fact there is considerable doubt whether it will ever occur. Fitzsimmons and Julian appear to have deliberately rushed into the hands of the Governor's officers, stating that they refused to avail themselves of the opportunity affected to dodge the officials by taking a Cotton Belt special train, because they feared it was a scheme to prevent them reaching flot Springs and claiming their forfeit. This claim can hardly be taken as sincere. It shows that Fitz was fight, as he knew that if taken the 7th and 10th of November.

Corbett will leave for Little Rock this afternoon to surrender himself to the authorities. He is now scheduled to leave here at 5 o'clock. Three-quarters of an hour after he leaves Fitzsimmons is expected to put in an appearance here. Corbett is to make his appearance in the ring at 12 o'clock, so that no assertion can be made that he ran away, and no claim can be made for forfeit money.

As the Sist is not up until midnight Fitz-simmons has several hours after he is through with the court proceedings to get here and repeat the programme of Corbett by climbing into the ring, saying he is here, afraid of nobody, and is willing and anxious to fight Corbett in private or public for marbles or for $10,000 or any part of it.

Then nobody can accuse him of running away and no claim for forfet can be made. The articles of agreement under which the present match is made expire at midnight. There is no chance whatever of a fight coming off before that time and then everything will be ready for a new deal all around.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Oct. S.—Early in the day preparations were made for Corbett's appearance at Whittington Park. The programme outlined was for the champion to appear in the ring about noon, make a short and uncomplimentary speech regarding the absent Fitzsimmons, and, after fulfilling his part of the contract by offering to fight, to leave the town. A large share of the Hot Springs population started for the park about daylight and waited with patience for the outcome of the affair. It was reported this morning that Corbett and Brady would lefve during the afternoon for Little-Rock, where they would give Gov. Clarke an opportunity to put them on trial. Corbett was invisible all the forenoon. His backers guarded their man with great care, and furnished plenty of mystery for the hotel crowds.

The arrest of Fitzsimmons was the cause of a deal of discussion and criticusm by partisans of both fighters. ment on what geologists call a great fault plane at the eastern base of the Sierra Nevada Mountains. In that part of the world there is an extensive "faulting" in the structure of the mountain ranges, each range consisting of one or more huge blocks of rock bound by faults and lifted above, its neighbors. A fault is made by the sinking of one mass of rock in such a manner as to change the relation of its manner as to change the relation of its elevation to that of a mass adjoining.

The shacks continued for fouriesn months. Great fissures were formed along the base of the mountain range for a distance of forty miles, the land west of the fault rising and east of it falling several feet. A fence was parted for a distance of fouriesn feet in one spot. Owens River was temporarily swallowed up, and the numerous other phenomena excited the astonishment and alarm of observers.

"To the President of the B. P. I.:

"It have made an examination of the footings and walls of the new City Hall as requested by your committee and herewith subjoin my report.

"The stone foundations generally comply with the specifications as to thickness and width. The beds of stone footings, as far as can be seen, are very uneven, no attempt having been made to level them as should have been done under the specifications. The whole footing work assems to have been carelessly and unavenly done. The materials as a rule are of good qualify. In many cases there is a scaling of the upper layer or stratum of the stones that have been exposed to the weather, which does not exceed a quarter of an inch in thickness. Whenever it exceeds a quarter of an inch in thickness.

"The reinforcement of this brick work as suggested would in my opinion cost from 32,000 to 22,500. Yours respectfully,"

The City Hell Commission met at noon. $2,000 to $2,500. Yours respectfully,

"I H RANDALL."

The City Hall Commission met at noon and President McMath submitted the report of Mr. Randall. It soon developed that the Boar dof Public Improvements was not ready to submit the report asked for in the resolution passed by the Commissioner last Saturday. President McMath started to spread out the pisns, etc., but he was interrupted by Mayor Walbridge, who said such plans afforded no information to the commission unless accompanied by an explanatory report.

President McMath replied that the board had not had time to complete such a report and that it would require at least a week. The commission concluded that it could not act without the report. As soon as this inpushed to completion.

Mayor Walbridge made a motion that the windows of the building he enclosed for the winter, which was carried. superintendent of construction of the new City Hall, for which he is drawing a salary from the city. This was decided at Thursday's meeting of the City Hall Commission. When he gets here he will find himself kept busy, for awhile at least, answering questions.

President Nagel made the motion. He said that Mr. Mann ought to be here to furnish the commission with information. He had been out of the city new for several weeks, when he should have been here. The motion passed unanimously.

Building Commissioner Randall inserted the querry, asking if there is no way to discharge Mr. Mann.

The Board of Public Improvements met at 9:30 and went into committee of the whole to consider reports submitted by Engineers Sayler and Zeller. These reports were not written, and consisted of marked plans and photographs. Building Commissioner Randall also submitted the following report and recommendations: It is the only one that contains estimates.

He had received no orders whatever prior to the accident, and when the shock came thought his train had run-into a stationary train on the blind siding. At that point there are two main tracks and a spur, the latter extending about twelve car lengths. His train had stopped at Howard's, taking on two passengers. The train had therefore not attained a greater speed than fifteen or eighteen miles an hour. At the time of the accident witness was about two-thirds back in the smoker, the last of the three cars. The first car was locked, there were twelve passengers in the second and five in the smoker.

H. S. Feldott, conductor of the outgoing train, was put through a rigid examination, developing that the train had not stopped at Tower Grove Station, although that is a regular station, and that Brakeman J. T. Ryan of the outbound train noticed at Tower Grove that the train was on the wrong track. Feldott made the following statement:

"Just before we left the Union Station I got on the engine. There was no one there. The fireman and engineer were getting a lunch. About four minutes before leaving time the fireman came back and the engineer about a minute later. He said he had got an oyster stew, and felt first rate. I then got off, after giving the orders about the crossing to the other track and back.

"Two passengers got on at Vandeventer avenue. In taking tickets I commenced at the head end and was through the second car when we reached Tower Grove. There was no slop at Tower Grove because there were no passengers to get on or off. As I was finishing up with the fares, Brakeman Ryan came and asked me why we were on the inbound track. I told him I guessed we weren't, that we had no orders to that effect. He was positive and I turned to pull the bell cord. I had pulled once when the shock came. It was the first trip I had made since this switching was commenced. The engineer knew the orders, because I saw his signature to them.

"It is the duty of the conductor to watch the track, but I was very busy. I was notified by the brakeman at King's highway, a mile beyond the switch we should have taken. I don't know where he first noticed we were wrong. He could have rung the bell himself, but didn't know but that it was all right for us to have been on that track."

Coroner Wait laid great stress upon the fact that no stop was made at Tower Grove and made Feldott admit that the arrangement of not stopping when no passengers were to get on or off was not an official order, but between craws for their convenience. Feldott had not noticed the switches or signal lights and knew nothing about them.

testified that he was acting as brakeman and baggageman at the time of the accident. He was in the rear of the combination baggage car and smoker. He said that the brakeman was not supposed to know on what track the train was traveling. He had heard—where he did not know—that the orders were to switch to the inbound track and back again. At Tower Grove he was between the first and second cars on the platform, and noticed as the trains slowed up that they were on the wrong track, because the train was too far from the station shed. He supposed it was all right, although he knew the outgoing trains for a week had been switching at Spring aremue to their proper tracks. He decided, though, to question the conductor, and walked the two car lengths to reach him. Just as the conductor pulled the cord the collision occurred. Ryan thought he he had notified the conductor promptly, although the train had traveled half a mile after he discovered the blunder before he notified the conductor. It was not customary for the conductor. It was not customary for the conductor to notify the brakeman of orders.

County for an injunction to restrain the Board of Education in East St. Louis from ousting him from the positions of Superintendent of the City Schools and Secretary of the board. Mr. Slade has retained excongressman William S. Forman and his law partner, Mr. Watts, and Hon. W. A. Rodenberg to represent his interests. The board has employed Benjamin F. Canby.

Congressman William S. Forman and his law partner, Mr. Wests, and Hon, W. A. Rodenberg to represent his interests. The board has smployed Benjamin F. Canby, Judge of the City Court, to assist Martin D. Baker, attorney of the board, in looking after the defense.

Application for the writ of injunction was submitted to Judge Wilderman at Belleville this morning and the board's attorneys immediately asked and were granted a continuance until next Monday, Mr. Forman, of counsel for the plaintiff, is in Washington, D. C., but will return to the city Fridey. There are several-legal phases to the case and on the one side it is claimed that Prof. Slade's remedy was a sult to recover his salary of $1,000, as the board's unanimous adoption of a resolution to outst him was effective in vacating the office.

On the other hand it is claimed that the contract jointly signed by the board and Mr. Slade binds the board to carry out its provisions unless specific charges of deroliction of duty are conclusively shown—that the mere assertion that "the beat interests of the schools demanded his removal" is too narrow. The action of the board is being severely criticised by Mr. Slade's freuds but many believe that the semoval was made in good faith and that the beard will be sustained in the courts.

CONWAY MURDER TRIAL.

Witnesses Tell of the Relations Between Plaintiff and Mrs. Leonard. on the stand for the State in the James conway murder case, in the Crimina

wm. Chapman was the first witness put on the stand for the State in the James Conway murder case, in the Criminal Court Thursday. He had been on the stand Wednesday afternoon and examined by Mr. Zachritz. Col. Nat Dryden for the defense began Thursday with the crossexamination. He tried to make the witness alter his statement that Thomas Leonard, the murdered man, had been in the habit of keeping his left hand in his hip pocket. Finally he picked up a tin type of Leonard, which he stated he would submit to the jury. A heated argument followed between Mr. Zachritz and Col. Dryden as to whether the State or defense should submit the picture.

J. H. Whitehouse, 227 Madison street, knew Conway and the Leonards well. He had seen Conway and Mrs. Leonard together frequently. On one occasion Mrs. Conway and Leonard went to Leonard's home, at 213/6 Market street, and found the room occupied by Mrs. Leonard locked. Whitehouse was in the aliey near the room gt the time, and he saw Conway rinding down at the time, and he saw Conway running down at the time, and he saw Conway running down as Market street with a weapon in his hand. In the cross-examination of Whitehouse, as with every previous witness, Col. Dryden endeavored to knock out a point which will be the State's right bower throughout the entire case. This is that Mrs. Leonard a year after her husband had died. He tried to show that other men besides Conway visited Mrs. Leonard. Whitehouse said that he had seen other men "canning" beer with Mrs. Leonard. Whitehouse said that he had seen other men "canning" beer with Mrs. Leonard. plication for a permit to the Mayor with the recommendation that it be granted. Superintendent of Repairs Macklind also reported favorably on the feasibility of the undertaking.

The hitch was about granting the company the privilege of extending its tracks over the bridge that spans the Rifer Des Peres. At first Commissioner Milner is said to have opposed this on the ground that the bridge is not wide or strong enough to earry the additional traffic, and it would require considerable expense to make it so, but he was induced to change his mind. He won't tell what the inducement was. When seen Thursday he denied having changed his mind, but his conversation left a doubt as to what his original opinion was. Engineer Carl Gaylor, who examined the bridge, said Thursday that it was one of the strongest in the city and amply able to bear the additional weight. This opinion is probably what swept away Mr. Milner's half-conceived objections.

When asked if he had signed the permit, Mayor Walbridge said: "Not yet."

pel the railroads to reduce the speed of that when his train ran into the other a few yards west of King's highway it was going at a speed of between eighteen thirty miles an hour. It is certain that both trains were running much faster than considerations of safety allow, and the wonder is that no more than four lives were sacrificed by the collision. tour lives were sacrificed by the collision.

This accident occurred close to a level crossing, which must have been passed Guians when it was ceded to Great British track at that crossing. A wagon load of twenty people might have been instantaneously killed, and the entire train wrecked and burned. It ought to be impossible for such things to happen within the limits of a city.

If the railroads wish to run at a speed greater than that allowed the street cars within the city limits, they should be compelled to abolish all grade crossings, either of highways or of other railroads. They should also be compelled to properly fence in their tracks and in every way comply with the requirements for safe running that railroads in European and Eastern cities have adopted.

THE OUTLOOK IN KENTUCKY.

Great interest is attached to several of the elections that will occur next Tues-day. That in New York State will de-termine the fate of several Presidential aspirants in both parties. In New York City the fate of Tammany hangs in the balance. In Maryland there is a prospect that Gormanism may become an abated nulsance in politics. In Ohio the ques-tion to be decided is whether or not another "sugar Senator" from New York will be returned to the United States Senate. In Iowa Allison is striving for a big majority as a starter for his Presidential boom. But more eyes are watchturned towards all the other elections out together.

What this result is to be is probably already determined. It is not likely that many votes will be changed between now and next Tuesday. The real work of the campaign has been completed, and it is now possible to sum up the probable outcome of the voting. In order to secure information on these points at first hand, the Post-Dispatch has sent a well-informed staff correspondent to Kentucky, and the first of his letters appears in to-day's issue. Another will be published to-morrow, and a third in the Sunday Post-Dispatch. The facts embodied in these letters are obtained from the leaders on both sides and from men not actively engaged in campaign work, but who are in a position to measure political forces with accuracy. The reader of these letters will be pre pared to discount next Tuesday's result, so far as Kentucky is concerned.

THE VENEZUELAN CONTROVERSY.

In a published letter, Gen. N. Bolet Peraza, former Venezuelan Minister to this country, gives a clear statement of the dispute between Venezuela and Great

Gen. Paraza's statement emphasiz It is time something was done to com-the conclusion conveyed by semi-official information. already made public that Great Britain has not a shadow of right mum. Conductor Williams testifies to a large part of the territory she is now attempting to seize. There seems to be overwhelming proof, in fact, Mr. Blaine so designated it when, as Secretary of State, he investigated the case, that Great Britain is endeavoring to advance the boundary of Guiana far beyond the extremest line she formerly claimed at such a high speed that there would ain by Holland was the Esquibo River, have been no hope for any living thing but in 1841 Great Britain sent an engineer which might have been detained upon the to survey the territory and he drew the now famous Schomburgh line, which too in a large part of Venezuelan territory as part of British Guiana. Great Britain subsequently receded from the Schom burgh claim, agreed to destroy the stakes and have the boundary settled by a joint commission. But she now claims more than the Schomburgh survey gave her including the mouth of the Orino which gives her command of the great river system of South America. The salient point in the controversy that Great Britain has admitted that no boundary has rightfully been estab lished. The dispute is one which Great Britain has recognized as a proper subject of arbitration and mutual ment. Her attempt to seize disputed territory without regard to Venezuelan rights or protests is a case of bald aggression and a plain infringement of the onroe doctrine.

Old friend, I hear your whistle
Upon the signag rail;
Your cheery voice of welcome
Rings on the autumn gale;
When scartet leaves and golden
Dance in the amber light,
You tell me of your presence
With a vim, Bob White!

A whole souled little fellow
In speckled coat of brown;
You heed not summer's passin
Or skies that darkly frown;
While other birds are quiet,
Your call comes to delight;
And that is why I like you

In the invention of an electric auto plow science has made another stride in the direction of the horseless age, and one which the farmer will be likely to regard with peculiar interest. The steam plow, which is already familiar on the vast farms of the West, has the drawbacks of great cost, cumbersome size and the difficulty of secur-ing supplies of fuel and water for the en-gine. In the electric plow, which is a German invention of recent origin, many of these defects are remedied. It may be op-erated from a central plant in a distant town by means of wires strung on poles to the farm, or it may be more conveniently run from an ordinary steam engine and dynamo on the farmer's own premises. The plow is a huge two-wheeled affair with a notor fastened upon it connected by wires with the dynamo. In operating it a stout cable, anchored at each end, is stretched moves by working the cable over a shaft When the end of the furrow is reached the plow is tipped over, the current reversed and the furrow in the other direction is be

We do not see why there should be any question as to that any more than as to whether the new members should recognize the old. Expensive Towels.

Towels at $30 apiece are among the luxuries shown beneath glase cases in some of the linen stores. They do not seem very distantly related to the heap of hucksback and damask which the fingers of the multitude handle on the bargain counter. They are as fine as silk, the bird's eye weave of the background close and soft. They are big affairs. They have drawn work as delicate as lace and embroidery almost as fine as that on christening robes for their adornment. Sometimes the embroidery is of pale pink and blue, but usually it is in linen tints.

Freezing Street Cars.

Editor of the Post-Dispatch: To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

It is about time the street car companies made an occasional fire in their cars or turned on the electric heaters. In the early morning and at night the cars are decidedly uncomfortably now and it looks very parsimonious for the cars to be left without artificial heat when the frost is on the ground outside. It is a curious thing that the street cars never get warmed in the fall until the citizens begin to kick. Another example of the soullessness of corporations, I suppose.

Riders Want Clean Streets.

Riders Want Clean Streets,

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The "Hickory Street Housekeeper" is inconsiderate. She wants everything, regardless of who pays.

The streets are made for the people using them and not for "housekeepers," who never fairly venture on one.

Selfish, indeed! Who meddled with the lady's parlor or suggested how she should scrub, clean or perhaps "sprinkle" it? That's her business, but as I am not amphibious, I want dry streets. Don't care if the lady wanted a slough in her parlor, but she cannot regulate the street, too, for the sake of her traps. The street was not made with respect to them.

Now, what riders particularly want is clean streets. If our precious city government-precious because costly enough-will not effect that, it has at least not the right to dirt-soak and ruin them. Better then leave them as nature decrees. The H. S. H. would be no worse off than the rest of the people. However, who would object to a light and perhaps a little more frequent sprinkling? Sufficient to moisten the street, lay the dust, but not make custard. We should then all be served.

In conclusion let me say that Hickory street has had the distinction of being the dirtiest thoroughtars the whole summer.

Rust on a Piano.

Rust on a Piano.

The appearance of rust on the tuningpins and the steel wires of a piano is a sure indication that the piano has been exposed to moisture or dampness. The time of year or the age or quality of the plano has nothing to do with it, as rust may appear in a night. The fact that the room is heated by a stove just outside of it will probably account for the rust, as the chances are that after the usual cooling of a fire over night its heating in the morning would be likely to cause condensation on the metal, and rust would immediately appear. Do not use oil or any greasy substance to remove it. It will probably not do any harm unless it causes the strings to break, in which case they will have to be replaced. Most planos require tuning twice a year. The only important care to be given a plano is to keep it in an even, dry temperature.

Boil these slowly for three hours, adding water if it becomes thick. Half an hour before serving add coffee cup of tomato catsup. Out of one thousand cases of which I have statistics, a recognized moral cause was found in 565 males and in 762 females, whereas other causes occurred in 455 of the males and 238 of the females. This shows that moral causes act more strongly on the female mental organization than on the male.

Of course woman, from her formation and the duties she has to perform in life, is rendered liable to be mentally unhinged, but at the same time she is free from that abnormal excitement which surrounds man in his endeavor to compete with others and to hold his own in his battle with the world.

in his endeavor to compete with others and to hold his own in his battle with the world.

It is a difficult thing to obtain proper statistics as regards lunacy in women. In the higher and middle classes of society it is well known that, instead of being placed in an asylum, women are often taken care of at homs during their mental affiction, especially if it is the first attack and one deemed curable in its nature. There is a disinclination, in fact, to send a woman, if it can possibly be prevented, to whatever class of society she may belong, to an asylum.

Certain forms of mama are very common in women. One is the delusion that men are in love with them. I have come across many women who, whilst laboring under a delusion that some man has encouraged them in their feelings, would continue to persecute him by their attentions. This form of female mania is often directed against clergymen. Something that he has said in his sermon will be construed by a woman as affecting her, and perhaps she will write numerous letters to him until he has no alternative but to communicate with the girl's friends to stop the persecutions.

with the girl's friends to stop the persecutions.

One typical case I recall. It is that of an elderly lady who repeated to me the oft-told story that a rector of a parish, himself a married man, had been alluding to her in his sermons. Wherever he want she pursued him. Every gesture, every word was interpreted by her to mean something. She took copious notes of what he said in his discourses and gave to each expression her own meaning until the idea became so gigantic as to cause her to become such an intolerable nuisance that the rector had no alternative but to caution her relatives. In whatever church he preached there she was found occupying a conspicuous postion among the congregation. She had to be eventually placed in an institution.

This is a form of moral insanity, and the victims to it are as a rule elderly females, of by no means prepossessing appearance. There is a typical class of such cases and many vicars of large parishes can bear me out in what I new say.

But clergymen are not the only victims. Only the day before I left England I saw a lady who entertained the same delusions with reference is a member of Parliament, and persecuted him with her letters, on-ultimately recovered and married the Governor.

Another case of demoniacal possession in a woman is described by my notes taken at the time: "Acute mania, says she is a witch and that the devil is inside her and that she has been sent by the devil to earth and that she is doomed to go to hell, and that the gates of heaven are closed to her. Raving constantly and very wild in manner."

and that the gates of heaven are closed to her. Raving constantly and very wild in manner."

Her mother, who brought her to my house in London, told me that she had been raving all night and shouting out that she was killed, jumping out of bed and groaning and talking incessantly. I signed her commitment order, as it was dangerous for her to be at large.

The case was a very sudden one and as is often found in maniacal cases in women came without any previous warning.

I recollect a lady who imagined that her love was reciprocated by a clergyman, and who went to a suburb a few miles out of London to visit him. She only went for the day and left in the morning perfectly well. She returned in the train to town, apparently in her usual state, but when the train reached London, half an hour afterwards, she was found raving in an acutely maniacal condition in the railway car. This is not an isolated case, for I have known many cases of acute mania occurring in females in an equally sudden manner.

Meloncholia, a variey of insanity commonly met with in females, is characterized by great mental depression and generally with suicidal tendencies. There is a special variety of this complaint to which girls are subject. It is that of "Static Melancholia," in which the individual so afflicted stands in one posture more or less all day, rarely, if ever, altering her position. Some years ago, when Miss Lingard, a celebrated actress in my own country, was called upon to portray in "Called Back" the character of Pauline, the heroine who goes out of her mind, she communicated with me as to how to go about the study of such a mental complaint as that of "Static Melancholia." I offered to accompany her to Bethlehem Hospital, and there showed her a typical case to illustrate the character. She succeeded in giving a realistic representation of the disease. Many women pine and ultimately become melancholy mad in consequence of an imaginary or real love affair. Hysteria, or as it is now better known, neurasthenia, plays an important part in unhinging the minds of those women who are predisposed to mental disorders. Hysterical symptoms of all kinds very frequently are the forerunners of mental allenation. The symptoms assume the most varied form and are complicated with epileptic and cataleptic conditions.

Among the nervous, symptoms met with in the hysterical character which may ultimately lead to mental aberration is a special form of convulsive cough. I have observed this in several cases in women who ultimately became insane. If may persist for months, even for years, after recovery from the mental disappears as it came.

Hysteria in women may simulate every possible disease under the sun. I remember my attention being drawn while passing through the wards of a hospital, to a girl who was supposed to be suffering from a form of paralysis, which had necessitated possible disease under the sun. I remember my attention being drawn while passing through the wards of a hospital, to a girl who was supposed to be suffering from a form of paralysis, which had necessitated her being confined to bed for a period of six months. The case, at the time, was not in my department of the hospital. I was simply asked to examine her. From the symptoms I observed I was led to believe that the complaint from which she suffered was acute hysteria, and acting on the belief I decided to try and put her to the test. I had her taken out of bed by two nurses and led to the end of the ward, which was a very long one. I then had her placed in the corner, and ordered the nurses to leave her alone and unsupported. Without the least difficulty the patient, whe up to the time had been considered incapable of the least exertion and unable to move a limb, walked back to her bed a cured woman. I allude to this case especially to show to what extent hysterical symptoms in woman will go if not checked and often deceive those who may be inexperienced in such matters.

Another curious symptom I have observed in girls who are on the borderiand of insanity, if not actually affected at the time, is a desire to do things a certain number of times—generally three. For instance, they will come down with their bonnets on ready to go out, but before they will do so they will go up stairs and take them off again, and this will be repeated a certain number of times. They will get up from the chair to go to the door, and having done so, they will round and sidder to witness than when occurring in mem. All the deepest feelings of emotion and love which exist in the female organisation are deranged. Natural affection, so strong in the sex, becomes often changed to hattred. Intensity of affection is replaced by the deepest desire for revenge, without any apparent cause.

In conclusion I would like to say that I have impressed me as the most beautiful. One was a marble palace on an island called Santa Clementea, half an h

TRUTH ABOUT MARLBORDUGH.

What He Wears, and the Way He Looks and Acts. Perhaps you have never seen the Duke of Mariborough. It is quite likely that you haven't. He is a very exclusive gentlemanstops at exclusive hotels, associates with exclusive people. He is, you know, the young man who is to marry a girl who will get something like $15,000,000 when she is married; later on in life she will have about $15,000,000 if she survives her parents. If you were to see his lordship the Duke, you would be disappointed; Somehow or other the mind's eye conjures up a vision of a deep-chested, stout-limbed, brawny and oftentimes handsome fellow when an Englishmen is mentioned. That is not so of the Duke, Englishmen are not always handsome and muscular any more than Americans are and the vast majority of Englishmen of noble birth are anything but athletic in halls. Nature did not treat the ninth Duke of Mariborough very kindly in the matter of physical proporties.

also. He isn't more than five feet five inches in height.

In the matter of weight it is about an even thing between his lordship and his affianced. He weighs about 120 pounds. His chest is hollow, and for that reason he is lacking in lung power. Being somewhat short of wind, as of other things, he speaks in almost a whisper, and sometimes he is almost inaudible in his speech. Servants are very frequently put to the embarrassing necessity of exclaiming: "Begging your lordship's pardon," thus indicating that they desire the question or the command repeated. Being short of stature, it is not at all likely that the Duke would look one whit more imposing if he were to wear American made clothing. That would at least outline his figure and its symmetry or the lack of it. But his clothes are, of course, of foreign make. He is no credit to his tailor. Perhaps his tailor is a credit to him. He looks as though he had been thrown into his clothing. His coats are several sizes too large for him. So are his trousers. too large for him. So are his trousers.
That is, of course, the fault of his tailor.
But it mars the appearance of the Duke.
The only redeeming feature of his garb is the material used. That is usually of Scotch tweed or English worsted. Those are very nice materials.

The only redeeming feature of his garb is the material used. That is usually of Scotch tweed or English worsted. Those are very nice materials.

In the matter of linen the Duke is quite up to date. For ordinary attire he wears a shirt of a delicate shade of pink or lavender. He is, or was, rather inclined to sacrifice style to comfort during the warm days. He often appeared in the lobby of the hotel where he makes his home, in a negligee shirt, with collar attached. His cuffs were quite large. In the matter of neckwear there is not so much to be said in his favor. His cravats would look very chic on a small boy in a Fauntieroy suit but they are too young for the Duke. His red scarf is not that rich red called bullock's-blood by the haberdashers, but it is more like a rainbow hue of pink. His blue scarf is not the Bond street blue nor the robin's-egg blue, either of which would be appropriate to his blonde complexion. It is a baby blue. It doesn't look well. Bootmakers say that a long, narrow foot on a shan is an evidence of gentle birth and refinement. The Duke's foot is long and narrow, but his shoes are not pointed to such an alarming and absurd extent as they might be without transgressing the rules of fashion.

His hats are queer. His derby is very low in the crown, and the brim is not wide enough to accord with this season's idea of what is the proper thing in headgear. But it suits the Duke, and several of the up-town chappies are wearing the same siyle of derby. They couldn't wait to have the hats imported. But an American hatter who dictates the fashion on this side sent a designer from his shop to set his earle eye on the lines of the Duke's hat, and straightway the designer made a block just like it. There were seven hats made from the block, and then it was consigned to the fiames. This is a fact. These hat may be seen on upper Broadway or in one of the irrigating establishments in that part of town during the day. In collars the Duke and sometimes the poke. They are so high as to afford an excellent

HOW TO MAKE A GREATER CITY

Sir Charles Gibson on Systematic Planting of Shade Trees.

THE PARKS OF ST. LOUIS.

One of Their Founders Favors the Establishment of Another Cordon of Pleasure Grounds.

When the millionaire guests of the Com-nercial Club were in St. Louis last week and were asked by the Post-Dispatch what hey thought of St. Louis, they made sevuggestions which were accepted in a charles at his home, 248 Larayette avenue, and the tree planting subject was brought up.

"It is an old and favorite scheme with ma." said Sir Charles. "Shade and water are both invaluable in a climate like ours, because they add to the beauty, the comfort and the health of the people.

Some years ago the Post-Dispatch undertook to advocate and frocure the passage of the ordinance requiring the streets to be watered by the city. It was a long and hard pull for the paper, but the munificence and utility of the measure is now almost universally conceded. Several showers a day over several hundred miles of streets make the city cooler than the country, relieve it of dust and save in injury to clothing, dry goods and other property which would be caused by the dust, twenty times the cost of watering the highways.

"The planting of trees along the streets by the city would give a uniformity and beauty that can never be achieved otherwise. The shade would also tend to cool the city, and the influence of the foliage would be beneficial to health. Where trees are planted by individuals it is all done in patches. Some put in one kind of trees and others other kinds. Few citizens understand what trees to select or how to plant them, and often they are greatly imposed upon. Then again, when a man buys a lot and builds a house he improves his yerd and plants his own trees, while the proprietors on both sides of him leave theirs unplanted, SIR CHARLES GIBSON. ting to sell their lots without the ex-or trouble of getting the trees. The who improves his place is given no by these propristors, although their propagar will be enhanced by the im-"I think the Board of Public Improve-nents should be authorized to designate the treets to be planted and a bureau of for-stry should be established in the office of he Park Commissioner, who should be re-ulred to select and plant the trees on such itreets.

"Boss Sheppard plants trees uniformly along nearly all the residence streets of Washington City. They are grown up and are now a splendid ornament to the city.

Vashington City. They are grown up and re now a spiendid ornament to the city, see yell as a great comfort and pleasure to be seen to consider the people. Of course trees should only be lained on permanently graded streets.

There is an evil in this regard that ought it once to be attended to. One-half of the sw trees already planted have been detroyed by horses being hitched to them here is an ordinance fixing a penalty for or any injury done to a shade tree, but it is practically ussless, because the informargets no reward for prosecuting the oranger. This should be changed, making the sensity not less than fa, and giving one-saff to the informer. If this were done the will would be at once remedied.

That is one matter about the sprinkling reducance that also needs attention. As it low stands separate tax bills are made but for the most trivial amounts, numbers if them for less than fi. They have all to be paid separately and are liens upon the property taxed. This is a good thing for the lift Hall crowd, as it must empley a number of cierks and other persons to go through all the machinery of entering the taxes in the books, making out the bills, receipting for them and forcing the liens by law if necessary. The taxes for sprinking and—if anything be done about it—the assessments for planting shade trees should all be put in and made part of the regular tax bills against such property, and thereby save the expense mentioned, as well as a good deal of vexation and trouble to the properitors.

"I was one of the first Park Commissioners in St. Louis, having been appointed in isst. There were but a few small parks in the city then. In 1852 Stephen D. Barlow lived near me here, and he and I had an interview in this house about the improvement of what is now Lafayette Park, and which was 'then known as the Parade Ground. It was then outside the city limits. There was a forest between here and the city, and not a house in the town could be seen from my front door. About one-third of the northern part of the park was then fenced in and held by Patrick M. Dillion's estate under the Mackey claim. I made an arrangement with the trustees of the estate, and the fences were removed.

"Mr. Barlow and myself selected the name Lafayette Square because that portion of the city east of it was known as 'French Town', and Lafayette was a name popular with both Americans and French. At that time the park was considered large enough for all the future wants of the city. The name suggested was adopted by the City Council, except that 'park' was substituted for 'square."

drew off much of their custom, especially on Sundays.

About twenty years ago the demands for a great park were so pressing that several gentlemen, of whom I was one, undertook to establish Forest Park. After failing to get one bill through the Legislature, passing a second bill which was defeated by Mr. Chouteau and others in the courts, we finally succeeded in passing a bill which was held to be valid after a fierce Hitgation from the same quarter. The members of the Legislature from that northern and southern portion of this city declined to support the bill unless parks were also established in their sections of the city. This was finally agreed to by myself and friends. Carondelet and O'Fallon parks were established in this way.

"At that time there was not a horse car nor a 'bob-tail' running anywhere near Forest Park. Not a house in the city could be seen from it. Many of our best citizens considered it a monstrous oppression. For instance, Mr. Garard B. Allen wanted to sell it out for a cemetery. The cable and electric roads, which have been since invented, have made the three parks accessible to the masses. The tax in the neighborhood of Forest Park no doubt now pays the interest on the bonds issued for its purchase and improvements, and will soon, if set apart for that purpose, create a sinking fund which will pay the principal and thus the city gets the park for notheling.

"But still greater improvements are now being repression to the search of the park of the best of the best of the park for notheling."

and thus the city gets the park for nothing.

"But still greater improvements are now being perfected in urban transportation. The population is rapidly going beyond the city limits. When I came to St. Louis Seventh street was the west boundary. The city was then extended to Sixteenth street, then again to Grand avenue, and lastly to the present limits, a distance of six miles from Seventh street. Each time it was supposed that the extension embraced enough territory for generations to come. But the people here do not live like they do in Europe; and there is no use in comparing St. Louis with London, Paris or Berlin. Our people want to get out of the smoke and confusion of the city proper, and they will soon stretch out over the central parts of the county.

"The little parks in the center, and the cordon of large pleasure grounds made by Carondeter Office."

St. Louis with London, Paris or Berlin. Our people want to get out of the smoke and confusion of the city proper, and they will soon stretch out over the central parts of the county.

"The little parks in the center, and the cordon of large pleasure grounds made by Carondelet, O'Fallon and Forest Parks, accommodate the present city. But there is a new St. Louis which begins to dawn upon us, and in the no distant future it will have to be provided for. In order to obtain large public grounds one has to look far ahead, and there is great difficulty in getting the people to act because they do not see the future. It is as had to be out of sight before as behind. But there should be another circle of parks for the new and greater St. Louis, and it is time to consider how to acquire them.

"Fifteen years ago I wrote a bill and sent it to one of our Congressmen which set apart Jefferson Barracks as a public park forever, but it was neglected and did not pass. The Government is now more liberal in the establishment of great national parks on the battlefields. Jefferson Barracks has been the center and greatest base of military giory and preservation of the Government than Shiloh, Gettysburg, or any other battlefield in the country. It contains 1,750 acres, which would make a park larger than Forest Park. It was originally a part of the Carondelet Commons, and was unjustly wrung from the little villages reliquished its title to the barracks. So the city has a certain moral claim to it. The soldiers would only be an ornament and not a detriment to the park. I have no doubt that with a little pressure upon our Congressmen they would pass a bill setting it aside as a public park under the control of the War Department as are similar national parks.

"It is time to consider the acquisition of a large park in the Southwest, another about Creve Coeur and one in the northwest." This may seem a little extravagant to the common mind, but it is far less so than the establishment of the three large parks we now have was twenty ye

FERD KENNETT CONVICTED. Verdict of Manslaughter Returned

Against the Ex-St. Louisan. Dispatches from Los Angeles, Cal., as ncing the conviction for manslaughter of Ferd Kennett for the killing of Detective of Ferd Kennett for the killing of Detective Lawson have caused great regret among his many St. Louis friends. Popular sympathy in Los Angeles was entirely with the defendant on account of his character as compared with Lawson's.

Ferd Kennett was for many years a leading character in St. Louis. His father was at one time mayor of the city and he was chief of police under the famous reform board. He is a brother-in-law of R. Graham Frost.

His St. Louis relatives and friends stood by him in his trouble and furnished the funds for his defense.

The sentence which will be pronounced may be from one to ten years. A new trial will be asked for.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 20.

Gen. Charles Tracey, Albany, N. Y.:

I have your letter and beg you to convey to my Albany friends and former sedshbors at the Democratic ratification meeting this evening my cordial congratulations on this wiss and patriotic declarations in their State platform concerning the leading quastions before the American people, and the assurance of my earnest wish for the success of our excellent State ticket.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

When the vast audience of over 1.000 persons had recovered from the surprise that the telegram seemed to cause there was a cheer that nearly rent the building in twain, and this continued for saveral minutes. Senator Hill smiled and joined in the applause with a hearty good will and this seemed to encourage the sufference to remedit again and again.

Senator Hill was received with vociferous applause when he arose to speak. In a great measure he repeated his New York speech upon the issues of the campaign.

moment an inspector demanded permission to examine the bill given by Coudy, says Inspector Cochran. It was one of the very bills described by the Odin postmaster in his letter of transmittal. Coudy's arrest was then decided upon and a warrant was procured from Commissioner Gray.

Inspectors Cochran and Williams say that when they searched Coudy after the afrest they found two $10 bills described in the Odin letter of transmittal.

Coudy's home was searched immediately after the arrest and several receipts for old debts recently paid were discovered, Inspector Williams says. The officers also state that they have found signs of high living beyond Coudy's legitimate means. The accused has been in the registry office nine years and was an effolient clerk. On account of the close watch always kept on the registry office, the officers cannot understand how letters could be taken out, opened with steam and returned.

The American 2rrety Company will pay. Postmaster Carlisle $1,000 of the thefts which may be proved against Coudy.

Coudy was well-known to many women of the half world. Lola Carter, a handsome, dashing brunette at 602 North Twenty-third street, was one of his intimates. She told a reporter that "Horace," as she affectionate-ly called him, came to see her frequently during the last three months. She last saw him Sunday evening. When the reporter told her that her lover is a thief, she laughed, and said she was sorry he had got into trouble.

The reporter called at Coudy's house on Pendleton avenue, but there was no one there except Coudy's little son and the servant girl. Mrs. Coudy went down town early in the morning, the servant said, and was not expected to return before evening. That was all the servant could tell, except that Coudy did not come home last evening.

One of the letter carriers says he met Coudy has night at Eeleventh and Olive streets, and that Coudy was so drunk he could scarcely walk. The carrier spoke to him and Coudy announced that he was going over to the Laclede Hotel, get a room and kill Simself in it.

Inspector Williams went to the Laclede at noon and searched through all the floors, but there was no corpse, nor any trace of Coudy in any of the rooms. A search of the other hotels is now being made.

H. H. Kirchner, the architect, says that at his residence the walks vibrated four inches and he thinks the excessively tall buildings may have sustained some damage. A vibration of four inches at the basement would increase to twelve inches at the top of a 200-foot structure. This Mr. Kirchner says is enough to loosen the terra cotta from the steel frame. He examined the Commercial Building, but there was no apparent damage.

Prof. F. E. Nipher of the Washington University, who has taken a deep interest in the study of earthquakes, was seen by a Post-Dispatch reporter to get his views on the shake-up of this morning.

"There are no conditions by which we can foretell the coming of earthquakes." said he, "they are liable to happen at any time. Although I believe when the barometer is down, that is at low temperature, conditions are more favorable. Shocks like the one this morning, in fact to my mind, nearly all earthquakes are caused by a displacement of the earth's strata. These layers begul upwards and as a consequence the condition are more favorable. Shocks like the one this morning, in fact to my mind, nearly all earthquakes are caused by a displacement of the earth's strata. These layers begul upwards and as a consequence the whole of the earth's surface.

"I can see how an earthquake can form a volcano. Say the temperature is very low, and therefore, the pressure on the earth's surface but slight. The strata gives way and in falling displaces rocks that are at a very high demperature. The displacement of these rocks leaves a cavity in which to generate steam, by the heat from the rocks and the gases and water in the earth; then you not only have an earthquake, but an eruption as well. When once a crater is formed it is easy to see how water constanting filing in on the heat of the rocks keeps up the volcanic action.

"But don't understand me to mean a low temperature and low pressure causes earthquakes. It is simply an immediate occasion to assist in the Julian asserts that Deputy Sheriff Cooper, who roasted Fitzsimmons in his Texarkana interview last night, had acted as a talebearer for Corbett all the way through. When he (Juliah) was at Hot Springs he discovered that everything that he said was conveyed to Corbett and Brady by Deputy Sheriff Cooper.

Fitzsimmons and Julian will be brought before Chancellor Martin in the Pulaski County Circuit Court, second division, at 2 o'clock this afternoon to answer to the warrant issued at the instance of Gov. Clarke. Julian says that he has nething to fear; that he has every assurance that he and Bob will be released on bond without delay, and that he will then leave at once for Hot Springs, where Fitzsimmons will claim his forfeit money from the Florida Athletic Club under the original agreement signed in New York. When this money is forthcoming Fitzsimmons will be ready to fight Corbett or any other man in the world for the championship and $10,000 a side before the club offering the best purse, and will be ready to fight on Friday, Nov. 1.

Julian sipulates-distinctly, however, that the club shall be in no way connected with the Florida Athletic Club, or any of its members. By Histore nothing to do with you or your train."

Vendig and Houpt conferred at the other end of the car. Mrs. Fitzsimmons says, as the train entered Arkansas, the Sheriff stepped forward, and addressing Julian, informed him that he and his party were under arrest. Julian saked for the warrant. Houpt said there was plenty of time for that, and declined to show it. Julian told him he Julian should consider himself and party free until he saw the warrant. Houpt hemmed and hawed, but refused to produce the document. As the train reached Texarkans, Sheriff Diliard and Deputy Sheriff Heard entered the car. Houpt met them and asked them what they wanted Diliard told him it was none of his business. They beth approached Julian and Fitzsimmons. Dillard produced his warrant and proceeded to read it. Houpt men and posseded to read it. Houpt men and produced a warrant and started to read, but Dillard finished before Houpt was half through. Houpt became exceedingly angry and began to espostulate when Dillard sho placed the Sheriff of Garland County under arrest for interfering with the Sheriff of Miller County in the discharge of his duty.

When constructed so as to be sensitive enough to register the slightest vibration the street care and heavy wagons passing by would set it off, and an sarthquake would be registered every few minutes. The only he way we could work it properly would be to place it upon a solid pier, set down firmly in the ground, about five miles out from the city. As the instrument would require daily attention, this would be inconvenient.

"I am certain many slight vibrations, similar to this one, are constantly occurring which we never notice.

"To the best of my knowledge this is the most severe earthquake in this locality since the New Madrid earthquake in Southwest Missouri in ISI. As far as I can determine now the direction of this vibration, was from north to south, or probably from northeast to southwest. It would be easy enough to determine, however. All that the would of the direction of the would surely defeat Fitssimmons and do it would be necessary is to get the time it was marked at different points, and then take the earliest and the latest, which would show the direction.

County Supt. Brown Was Terribly Weak and Nervous.

Took Dr. Greene's Nervura and is Now a Well Man.

Says He Feels Endowed With New Vigor and Health.

From the Syracuse (N. Y.) Herald. "How can I get rest and strength when hey are required?" This is a question that is daily asked by thousands of men and women who become so unstrong and nervous that when opportunity is afforded for rest it does not come. With thousands this question seems to have been solved, and that permanently. It is by the use of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy.

Among the very large number of busines men of Syracuse who have successfully used Dr. Greene's Nervura is Charles D. Brown, Deputy Superintendent of the County Poor, with an office in the Court of Appeals Library Building, who at one time believed that he would lose his mental faculties unless he had immediate relief from the nervous trouble with which he was afficted, and the debility imbued with the idea that I had made my last visit to my office, and that my nervous system had become so shattered that I never would be fitted for business again. I was in such a condition that I believed an insane asylum was staring me in the face. I found it impossible to sleep or get any rest at any hour of the day. My wife and family became therewelly also med and insisted on sending to be without result, and I believed that I was without help. Not so, however, for the messenger of health came through Dr. Greene's Nervura, which was recommended by a friend who had received great benefits from its use for only a few weeks. Having suffered in a measure from an attack similar to my own, 1 believed that he knew what he was talking about, and so decided to try Nervura.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Oct. 31.—Shortly you. The benefits began to be apparent beatter her arrival here Mrs. Fitzsimmons fore I had finished taking the first bottle.

Before this I had not been able to apply myhappened on the train at Texarkana. She says Sheriff Houpt and Joe Vendig boarded the train a few miles the other side of the Texas line. Vendig entered the car the Fitzsimmons party was in and handed Julian the letter of Supt Richardson, offering the party the use of a special train to run through Texarkana and elude the Governor's warrant. Julian, however, refused to have anything to do with his offer. vousness has disappeared, that which the doctors could not relieve. With the improvedoctors could not relieve. With the improvement in my nervous system came better health generally, and to-day I feel endowed with new vigor and health, thanks to the use of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerveremedy. I would not be without it under any circumstances."

Mr. Brown says that it affords him much pleasure to recommend the remedy prepared by Dr. Greene, who, he considers, is a benefactor to mankind. Brown can be found at his office every day. He honestly and enefactor to mankind. Brown can be found at his office every day. He honestly and enthusiastically recommends it to others. We would say also that this remarkable remedy is the prescription and discovery of Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th St., New York City, who can in all cases be consulted free of charge, personally or by letter.

William C. Steigers Fined $25 by Judge Peabody

FOR ASSAULTING G. W. JONES

He Admitted Having Struck the Blow That Caused His Arrest in the Post-Dispatch Office.

The case of William C. Steigers, ex-advertising manager of the Post-Dispatch, who was charged by George W. Jones. Business Manager of the Post-Dispatch with disturbing his peace, come up in the First District Court Thursday. It resulted in Steigers being fined Ex. in Steigers being fined $25.

Unusual interest was taken in the case owing to the prominence of the parties. The court room was crowded. The matter was gone into at great length. Col. John I. Martin represented the city, and Judge Krum the defense. The alleged disturbance took place on October 22, in the Post-Dispatch office.

Mr. George W. Jones, the prosecuting witness, was first put on the stand. He stated his connection with the paper, and gave the following account of the disturbance:

stated his connection with the paper, and gave the following account of the disturbance:

"Mr. Steigers came into my office about 5 o'clock. I was seated at my desk talking with a gentleman. Mr. Steigers waited until I was through. I got up and put on my cuffs. Mr? Steigers was still waiting. I asked him if he wanted to see me. He said he did, in a peremptory manner. He had a piece of paper in his hand and he began talking about some payment we owed a young man. I told him we did not owe the young man anything. He insisted that we did and became insulting about it. "You've got to pay it,' he said, 'and you might as well pay it like a man."

"Finally Mr. Steigers used an insulting remark. I then ordered him out of the office. He refused to go out, and declared that I could not put him out. I then said, 'I will have you put out."

"I sent for a police officer, and when he came I told him Mr. Steigers was disturbing the peace. Mr. Steigers then said, 'You are a liar.' The police officer did nothing, and I put my hands on Mr. Steigers to shove him out. He put his hand back to his hip pocket. I asked him what he meant by it, and he said he wanted to get a letter. I again put my hand on him, and he struck me."

me."
In response to Col. Martin's questions Mr.
Jones said that Mr. Steigers' manner was very mandatory.
Mr. Jones' cross-examination consisted of but two or three questions and developed nothing additional.

A. W. Aronson, bookkeeper at the Post-Dispatch, was asked to tell what happened. "Walt a minute, walt a minute," said Judge Krum. "I submit that this case does not come within the ordinance as shown by the city's case. The court has no jurisdiction."

not come within the ordinance as shown by the city's case. The court has no jurisdiction."

Judge Krum then read the complaint and the ordinance under which it was drawn.

"The ordinances of the City of St. Louis take no cognizance of such an affair, as is described by Mr. Jones," said the fawyer. "It was not a breach of the public peace. It may have been an assault on Mr. Jones, but it does not come within this ordinance, which is obviously intended to cover affrays in the public streets."

Judge Krum cited a case in substantiation of his position.

Judge Peabody stated that he was familiar with Judge Krum's contention, but could not take the same view of it.

"I know there is a chance for argument," said Judge Peabody.

"There is not only a chance but a great opportunity-for R," retorted Mr. Krum.

The lawyer's point was that the ordinance was classified among "breaches of the public peace." The Judge held that as it was not stated specifically that the breach of the peace must occur in public, his court had jurisdiction in this instance.

Judge Krum persisted in his contention and read other statutes in substantiation of his position, but the Judge ordered the testimony continued.

"My attention was first attracted to Mr. Jones' desk," then went on Aronson, "by hearing Mr. Steigers talking."
"Are you going to pay it?" asked Mr. Steigers.
"No, I don't propose to pay it," Mr. Jones answered. "No, I don't propose to pay it," Mr. Jones answered.
Mr. Steigers made an insulting remark and Mr. Jones ordered him out of the office. Mr. Steigers said "you can't put me out. It will take two like you to put me out."
Mr. Jones then sent the office boy for a policeman. The rest of it I did not see."
"Were there any ladies present?" asked Mr. Martis.
"The cashier was there. She is a lady."

Mr. Martis.

"The cashier was there. She is a lady."

A. E. Schmidt, an advertising clerk for the Post-Dispatch, testified to having seen part of the occurrence. He corroborated Aronson's statement. He did not see Mr. Steigers strike Mr. Jones, as this occurred outside of the office railing. Witness remained at his desk.

"Did you clerks expect a fight?" asked Col. Martin.

"Did you clerks expect a fight?" asked Col. Martin.

"No, sir, not any more."

"I presume they wept and tore their hair," put in Judge Krum.

J. T. Keiler, chief bookkeeper of the Post-Dispatch, testified that Mr. Steyers first come to him and asked him why Southard's two days' salary had not been paid. Mr. Jones then spoke up and asked if Mr. Steyers would see him. The witness then went on to give the same version of the affair as Mr. Jones.

E. J. Bisch, collector for the Post-Dispatch, saw the latter part of the occurrence and testified in the same vein with the others.

"What effect did all this have on the clerks in the office?"

"They all seemed very anxious not to hear anything about it."

"Was not Mr. Jones language loud also?" asked Judge Krum.

"Yes, sir, it was, towrd the close."

"How far away was he?"

"Three or four feet."

"You could hear him twelve feet away?"

"Yes, sir."

"Was his tone as loud as Mr. Steigers'?"

"Not quite, sir."

"Which one's peace was most disturbed?"

"Well. I don't know. I heard Mr. Jones

"Well, I don't know. I heard Mr. Jones say his was."

Robert E. Lee, a reporter on the Post-Dispatch, testified to having seen the police officer enter the building. He described the occurrence from that point. He stated that the police officer had his hand on Mr. Stelgers at the time the blow was struck. Mr. Jones had said:

"Mr. Stelgers, I have nothing against you personally, but you have come in here to disturb the peace of this office and my peace."

"You are a line" and Mr. Stelgers.

Sergeant Martin King, the officer in the case, then took the stand.

"I was summoned to the office of the Post-Dispatch," he said, "and heard voices in the back of the office. Mr. Jones said he wanted Mr. Steigers arrested. I asked what charge he wanted put against him. Mr. Jones did not reply, but continued arguing with Mr. Steigers. Mr. Steigers Mr. Steigers Mr. Steigers Mr. Steigers Mr. Steigers Mr. Jones a liar and struck at him. I then put him out of the office."

"Did he have a pistol on him?"
"I don't know. I did not search him."
"Was he searched at the station?"
"He was not. He was balled out immediately."
On cross-examination the officer stated.

"You were not present at this occurrence?"

"No, sir. I was dismissed Oct. 14."

"If you had stayed any longer," remarked the facetious Judge Krum, "you would probably have lost the rest of your hair."

Edward C. Southard, the young man over whom the trobule occurred, next took the stand. He had witnessed the occurrence. Mr. Steigers asked why Mr. Jones had not paid the account. Witnes could not remember what Mr. Jones said.

"Mr. Steigers manner was natural," said the witness, "just as yours is (to Judge Krum). His account agreed with Mr. Jones and the other witnesses for the city, except that he denied that the insulting remark was made before the arrival of the his employes by the office. He had pand Mr. Southard $10 for four days' services on Saturday night because the Post Dispatch cashier was gone. Mr. Keller had paid him back the next morning. He had gone to the Post-Dispatch office at Mr. Southard's request to get his other two days' pay.

"I spoke quietly," he said, "to Mr. Jones about the matter, and argued that the same rule of procedure should govern which had governed hitherto. Mr. Jones said he did not think so. He said, 'I'll not pay it,' quite loudly. I said, 'Why don't you pay the bill like a ma?' My voice was almost in a whisper. He discovered that I would not pay it, and told me to get out. I asked him why he did not try to put me out. "Had the conversation increased in volume?"

"Yes, it had grown more sprightly."

"He then said I'll have you put out, and he sent his office boy for a policeman. I stood there waiting.

"Were any ladies there?"

"I did not notice any. The cashier may have been there."

The defendant then took the stand. He testified to having been advertising manager of the Post-Dispatch. He still had a contract with the paper to this effect. He explained the manner of the payment of his employes by the office. He had paid Mr. Southard $10 for four days' services on Saturday night because the Post Dispatch

"I did not notice any. The cashler may have been there."
"Did you use the insulting expression attributed to you?"
"The statements of these witnesses are revelations. I said nothing of the kind—nothing obscene that I can remember."
"Did you call him a liar?"
"Yes, sir."
"I did."

"I did."
"What was Mr. Jones doing?"
"He had hold of the lapel of my coat and was pushing me out of the office. I asked him to remove it three times and then struck at him."
"Was your voice raised during this time?"
"Only when I called him a liar when he accused me of disturbing the peace."
"What was Mr. Jones' position there?"
asked Col. Martin.
"Business Manager."
"You called him a liar because you thought he would strike you, didn't you?"
"No, str. I called him a liar because I thought he was a liar."
"You went there to make a row, didn't you?"
"No, str. I appected no such province."

"No. sir. I expected no such provocation."
"You had no business there, did you?"
"Indeed. I am legally the advertising manager of the Post-Dispatch."
"Do you want us to believe that all of these witnesses who do not agree with you about Mr. Jones having hold of your coat are liars?"
"I know I'm telling the 'ruth."

Judge Krum's remarks aroused the indignation of Col. Martin, who denounced both Judge Krum and his client for what the latter had said and the former had done.

Judge Peabody then resumed his remarks.

EUROPE'S, EYES ON THE FAR EAST.

England's Interests Imperilled by Russia's Diplomacy.

CZAR'S LEAGUE WITH JAPAN

Great Britain Badly Worsted in the Great Game Played by Statesmen in the Orient.

pecial to The Post-Dispatch. LONDON, Oct. 31.—The belief that events LONDON, Oct. 31.—The belief that events of the first magnitude are impending in the Far Bast daily grows stronger, not only in London, but also in other European capitals. The only point upon which all reports and all opinions agree is that English interests in that section of the world are vitally threatened.

The reported treaty between Russia and China regarding Port Arthur aroused such widespread alarm in England that estainton has been distracted from news of more serious importance to this country which has been coming from Japan for several days past. The first hint of what was going on was contained in a dispatch to the Times, which said that a strong feeling in favor of Russia is gaining ground in Japan, it being held that a friendly alliance with that country can alone bring prosperty to Japan.

Then it was announced that Count Yamatagata is for Russia, and if he gains his point in the Council of Ministers Japan and Russia will be in the alliance.

To-day comes a momentous report, which is being freely circulated in diplomatic circles in London, but has not yet appeared in print, that such a Russo-Japanese siliance has been practically decided upon. This rumor, for I do not atempt to dignify it in any stronger name, finds readier credence among diplomats than the story about the scoret treaty with China. The diplomats of the world are beginning to regard China as in a condition of decadence almost beyond treaty making, impotent as a friend and harmless as an enemy.

It is well known that England has adopted of the first magnitude are impending in the yond treaty making, impotent as a friend and harmless as an enemy. It is well known that England has adopted the most friendly attitude towards Japan since the treaty of peace was signed. It is believed here that Japan has been putting that friendliness to the test.

The Japanese government, it is represented, argued that in the face of the obvious designs of Russia and France she must have the support of Great Britain to the extent of a full offensive and defensive alliance, because anything short of that would fall to check the plans of the opposing coalition.

alliance, because anything short of that would fall to check the plans of the opposing coalition.

England, of course, would not grant such a treaty, except in the face of the most desperate necessity. There are strong and manifold indications that Japan, becoming suspicious, as she is right in doing, of British bonafides, has been quietly negotiating for some weeks with Russia.

If this proves a correct view of the situation it will be greeted by the whole diplomatic world with gleeful satisfaction, if statesmen ever allow themselves to entertain such an emotion.

It is quite certain that not a finger will be raised to help England in her dilemma. On the contrary, all Europe will rejoice to see British preponderance in the Far East completely overthrown, as it soon would be in such an eventuality.

Every hour of the day this week brings fresh quotations of opinion from France, Russia, Germany, Austria and other parts of the Coutinent expressing setisfaction over the belief that England is being worsted in the great game of diplomacy now being played.

The only expedient anywhere suggested

SLAPPED BLACKBURN'S FACE.

Unauthenticated Story of an Encounter With Lieut. Young.

cial to The Post-Dispatch, WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 31.-There is an interesting story current which finds general credence that Lieut Lucien S. Young of the navy slapped Senator Blackburn's face at John Chamberlain's restaurant recently. Pending the result of the campaign in Kentucky it was thought prudent to swear all the witnesses of the row to secrecy, but the hushed gossip natural to such an incident has gradually worked its way into publicity.

Lieut Young caimly denies that there is any truth in the report of his chastleement of Blackburn, but nevertheless there are those who look for more trouble after the election unless mutual apologies are afranged for by the friends of both meh.

The cause of the quarrel is said to have been Blackburn's sulphurous criticism of Secretary Carlisle for his course, and that of his friends in opposing the reelection of the Senator as a free-silver candidate. Young objected to the abuse of his friend, the Secretary, whereupon there was some excited talk on Blackburn's part about slapping faces.

"You better look out or you will get your own face slapped," said Koung.

Blackburn swore that if any one stempted to slap his face he would kill him, whereupon the Lieutenant promptly reached out and landed his open hand once on the Senator's faw.

Instantly the men were separated, and it is understood that they have not met since. Blackburn has a reputation for bravery won during the war of the rebeillon as a dashing cavalryman in the Confederate service.

Young is the hero of the Huron disaster, who boldly youngested as with. general credence that Lieut Lucien S. of the navy slapped Senator Black-

FUN AT A MOCK TRIAL.

Christian Endeavorers Divulge What They Know of Love-Making.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The Christian Endeavorers of the First Presbyterian Church a preposs in Huntington, L. I., had a mock trial at their social gathering on Tuesday night.

in Huntington, L. I., had a mock trial at their social gathering on Tuesday night. Miss Dalsy Brook, personating Miss Norah McGinnis, sued Dennis O'Flaherty—in private life, Alva M. Bayliss—for breach of promise of marriage. She wanted $80,000 damages.

The testimony of the plaintiff and her young woman friends was interesting. It bordered on the sensational. The young woman said that Dennis had been a devoted lover. He called her "darling" and "sweetheart," and sang to her, "Daisy, Daisy, give Me Your Answer True."

Miss Gertrude Burgess testified as an expert in such affairs. From what she had seen she believed that the defendant's attentions were serious. She had heard him sing to Daisy, and had seen him get just as close to her as possible.

An alleged leweler said the engagement ring was worth $5,000.

The defense introduced four witnesse—Miss Ada Brush, Miss Agnes Rogers, Abram Field and Brewster G. Bamis. They swore to the good character of the defendant, and said that to sheir knowledge all the girls in town had been more or less in love with him. He had never shown any preference; but had treated them all alike. The Judged charged the jury st apiece, This was afterwards remitted. He was a married man, and showed his sympahty with both parties.

Men and women were on the jury. They brought in a verdict as follows: "Six cents damages, or marry the girl."

SHE LOVED MISS WRIGHT.

Emma Oswald Contemplated Murder and Snieide.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.-Miss Emma Os wald aged 33, of 102 Sands street, Brooklyn, a prepossessing woman, was arraigned in the Harlem Police Court on a charge it carrying a revolver and threatening to kill another woman, and held in $500 ball. Miss Barah A. Wright of 133 Manhattan avenue, a buxom, fine-looking woman, was the complaining witness. To the police matron Miss Oswald stated that she had roomed with Miss Wright for nearly six years, and that people who had been trying for a long time to separate them had finally succeeded. Her love for Miss Wright was so strong she could not live without her, so she purchased the pistol with the intention of killing both Miss Wright and herself.

Jesse Arnot's Home Sold.

Jesse Arnot's Home Sold.

Jessie Arnot's house at the northeast corner of Pine ntreet and Ewing avenue was sold at auction Wednesday for barely ground value. The premises have a frontage of 109 feet, 2 inches. There are two dwellings on the lot occupying to feet, at the corner. Harriet Blanchard of Philadelphia bought the houses through her agent, Farrar & Tate, for $7,000. The vacant lot adjoining on the west was bought by C. A. Freudenstein for $3,500. The property was acquired twenty-five years ago by Jesse Arnot for 10,000. The improvement cost him $5,000. Not enough was realized on the sale to pay off the deed of trust, which amounted to $13,000. Mr. Arnot, known by every old St. Louisan, at one time its wealthiest citizen, has lost all of his holdings here, recently closed up his

TEXAS BANK ROBBED. ault Opened, Safe Blown and $10,000

M'GREGOR, Tex., Oct. 31.—The front door was forced, the vault opened by some one who knew the combination, and the safe inside blown open with dynamite. It is belived that over $10,000 was secured by the robbers, who seeaged. The explosion wrecked the safe and vault and damaged the walls. Assis ant Cashier Samuel Sewell, who sleeps in the building, says he heard the detonation, but supposed it was a pistol shot in the street.

Wabash Officials Fear a General Shake Up After the First of the Year.

Employes of the Wabash Railroad of high and low degree are apprehensive of a ger eral shake-up among the officials and heads of departments after Jan. 1, when Joseph Ramsey, Jr., will take charge as vice-president and general manager of the property. Every officer on the road is appointed by the general manager, subject to the ap proval of the president, and Mr. Ramsey's record on the Big Four, where he made many changes, is the cause of the un-

President Hayes, will probably go with the latter to the Grand Trunk road. Other resignations may be sent before the first of

In this connection a story is going the rounds that Mr. Ramsey as general manager of the Terminal Railroad Association, during Dr. Taussig's absence in Europe, lopped off the official heads of several employes of the company, among whom was Herbert Taussig, a nephew of the President of the company, and three or four others in whom Dr. Taussig took an interest. One of the latter is Morrie Wuerpel, patentee of a number of devices in use on the Eads Bridge and in the big tunnel Mr. Taussig was the chief engineer, and drew a handsome salary.

He built the greater part of the Terminal lines, and was in the company's employ for fifteen years or more.

Since Mr. Ramsey has secured the position vacated by Mr. Hays at the head of the he regrets having dismissed Chief Engineer Taussig, as that move will be certain to when the latter returns from Surope.

Rumor has it now that Hubert Taussig

St. Louis Maids and Their Lovers Will Observe the Festival in the of the fairles, when witches, devils and all manner of spooky folk with mischief-making tendency are abroad at midnight. It is the night of all nights exclusively the belonging of lovers and of those who relics remaining from primitive times.

the most romantic of all the superstitious relics remaining from primitive times.

It was on All Halloween, according to Burns, that "The old guidwife's well-hoarded nits Are round and round divided.

And many lade' and lassies' fates

Are there that night decided."

Two of the guidwife's store of nuts were named for a lad and a lassie romantically to each other inclined, and put in the coals to roast. Accordingly as the nuts lay quietly and roasted together or moved apart as the heat expanded and burst them was to be the issue of the courtship.

But the apple is the greatest diviner of the future known to Halloween traditions. It dates its relevancy in this respect back to the story of Adam and Eve, and is therefore appropriately the medium of fairles and witches given especially to the making of matches. Bobbing for apples in water is the oldest form of apple divination, but its peelings are also a most prescient and accurate vehicle by which these people of the air convey their will and purposes.

Almost every boy and girl knows what bobbing for apples is. It gives the funloving youth a chance, in addition to its mystic uses as a charm to propritate the fairles, to duck their elders unawares, for it is a game into which the old folks are pretty sure to Join before it's over with.

To play this game you take a tub of water and place it in the kitchen or in some other convenient apartment where the water will do no damage. Drop two or three nice rosy apples into the water and then caution every one not to take them out with their mouths all at once. A bright, laughing girk neels at the side of the tub and gracefully bending over attempts to extricate one of the apples from the water by biting into it. Of course, it is an exceedingly difficult feat to perform, but now and then it is accomplished, amid the great merriment of the lookers-on.

An apple hung by a string in a doorway affords almost use of the apple in the fine of the town when in the water. But have a long cutting of its skin, which is swung three

Rice, I sow thee;
Rice, I sow thee;
He is to be my lover,
Come after me and show thee.
Do this three times, Look back over your left shoulder and you will see the form of the man you are to marry;

Take a candle, go alone into a dark room and eat an apple before the looking-glass. The face of your future husband or wife will peep over your shoulder and you can see the reflection of it in the glass.

Take three saucers. Fill one with clear water, one with inky water, and leave one empty. Blindfold a young man and lead him to the dishes, when he dips his left hand into one of the three. If he touches the clear water a widow and the empty dish signifies that he will live and die a bachelor.

signifies that he will live and die a bachelor.

Take a handful of fine ashes. Blow your breath hard into it. If it files over your face your future husband will be unkind. If it does not he will be kind.

'Take a glass of cider in your right hand. Go down the cellar stairs backward, at the bottom of the stairs turn argund three times and look into the glass and you will see your future husband's face.

Apropos of all these games, the following story will serve to illustrate the value of them:

An American girl, traveling in Ireland.

It is always well to wind up the games of All Halloween with thrilling stories. Stories that are told to laughing young people sitting around a bright fre are agt to lose much of their power to thrill; but when told under proper conditions a very satisfactory result is achieved. In order to effect this take a soup plate and fill it full of salt, pour alcohol over the salt, and when all the lights have been extinguished touch a lighted match to the spirituous fuld. Hue and yellow flames will immediately shoot tiny tongues upward that will curl and dance most fantastically. A ghastly and unearthly light will be thrown upon the assembled group that will give the scene a weird aspect. Then, when all is ready, tell your story in sepulchral tones. You will be surprised at the result; you will then be observing All Halloween, with all the realism that the magic occasion can possibly conjure.

Among other Halloween with sink with the proparation charm is, of course, broken.

In St. Louis to-night there will be many merry Halloween gatherings, for the time-honored custom is much in vogue among all classes. It affords young people a chance that the rest of the year doesn't give them to pry into futurity and to see what matrimonial fortune awaits them at the hands of presiding deities of the spirit world.

In this way the sacred or hallowed e'en preceding All Saints' day is observed by the young, intended at first as the preparation for one of the most solemn and impressive rites of the Romish Church, it now gives full sway to merriment, revelry and con-

Among other Halloween games that make lots of fun for the players are the following: Nut-cracking and seed-sowing—The maid who wishes to know which of her lovers is faithful, puts two nuts on the stove, side by side, and names them after her lovers. If either nut cracks and files off the stove, that lover will prove unfaithful. If either nut burns, the lover is faithful and true. In sowing the seed, take a handful of rice, throw it into the street and repeat these words:

Rice, I sow thee;
Rice, I sow thee;
Rice, I sow thee;
Rice, I sow thee,
Come after me and show thee.

Do this three times, Look back over vision of the Post Office, was arrested by Inspectors Cochran and Williams Wednes-day night as he left work on the charge of day night as he left work on the charge of rifling a letter and taking money from it. He was released by United States Commissioner Gray on $1,000 bond. Coudy has a wife and three children at 1319 Pendleton avenué. His salary was $1,000 a year.

His arrest was due to the disappearance of funds sent by country postmasters for deposit in the $1. Louis Postoffice.

The Postmaster at Odin, Ill., a few days ago sent a letter of transmittal to the $1. Louis office, describing in detail $133 which he had forwarded, but when the package was opened the bills were missing.

The Post-office inspectors allege that Coudy spent one of the $5 bills described by the Odin Postmaster for cigars, and they say he had two $10 bills beloning to the amount when arrested. Coudy refused to discuss the case.

His whisker were long and unkempt, his grimy face was as expression-less as a stone and his whole appearance was extremely repulsive. "He's a morphine flend," whispered Dr. Roeder as he approached the ceil. The man heard him and jumped wildly from his cot. He stood in the middle of his cell, barefooted and half clothed. "Oh, doctor, for God's sake give me some morphine or Pil die. I haven't had any for twenty-fours hours and its killing me." He pleaded wildly in this strain until the retreating footsteps of the doctor died away, and then he fell back on the cot. "How did you get here?" was asked, At first the unfortunate fellow would not tell, but finally he related the story. His name is Charles Shelley Hughes. He is known as the poet printer, is 40 years old, and was born in Richmond, Va. He has lived in St. Louis seven years, and until the morphine habit fastened tiself upon him he had a bright future before him. Four years ago, to relieve an intense fever, he allowed a physician to administer morphine. He became addicted to its use until finally the habit gained such a control over him that he was unable to attend to pushess. This was about three months ago.

Hughes was then smployed by the Kellogs Printing Co. He gave up his situation and knocked about town eating what little food he could pick up and borrowing or beg-air and beautiful—the woman who keeps at a distance the complexion beautifiers, paints and powders, which soon ruin the face. A healthy glow to the skin, a face without winkles, and sparkling eyes, will be yours if you keep the system and the special internal organs in good condition. The young girl, or woman, often grows pale, wrinkled and thin, eats little, everything wearies her, she complains of herself as aching and sore and as aleeping poorly. Often she is troubled with backache, or a tender spine, with a bearing-down weight in the abdomen, or at periods she may be irregular, or suffer extreme pain from functional derangements.

Dr. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y., in his long and active experience, met many cases of this kind, for which he used a prescription which was found to cure such difficulties permanently in ninely-eight per cent. of all cases. Having proven so successful, Dr. Pierce put his "Favorite Prescription" on the market, and it is to-day sold more largely than any other medicine for the ills of woman.

For all functional derangements, displacements, ulceration, inflammation, and the catarrhal drain from the lining membranes of the special internal organs of women, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription reaches the origin of the trouble, and corrects it.

ROBBERS RAID A SALOON.

O'Gorman Attempted to Stop the Rob ber Who Was Escaping With the Cash and Was Fatally Wounded.

Great excitement prevails in the little suburban village of Benton, eight miles west of the city, on the Missouri Pacific

John O'Gorman, an expressman at tha John O'Gorman, an expressman at that place, was shot and mortally wounded late last night by a pair of murderous robbers, who had blacked their faces with burnt cork to disguise their identity.

The robbers escaped, but there is a posse of volunteers in pursuit and if he is cap-ured there will be trouble for him, as the people are very much excited.

O'Gorman was seated by the stove in William Wagner's saloon, 6940 Manchester oad, talking to Wagner, when a man en-ered with a revolver in his hand and burnt cork on his face. A companion stood at the door and the man who entered told him to shoot the first person who moved.

up their hands—which they did—the first robber walked sideways to the cash drawer, opened it with his left hand and slipped the contents into his pocket.

O'Gorman, seizing an opportunity when he thought the burglar was off his guard, made a spring and grabbed at the pistol.

There was a quick, sharp report, accompanied by a flash. O'Gorman sank to the floor. The burglar dashed out of the door and he and his companion were heard running away.

door and he and his companion were heard running away.

Wagner gave the alarm and in a few mintues the suburb was aroused and men were searching for the murderous robbers. O'Gorman was taken to his room over Wagner's saloon and physicians summoned. The bullet entered the right breast, near the clavicle and ranged downward. The wound is mortal and O'Gorman was hardly alive at 8 o'clock Thursday morning.

The robbers secured $35 in cash.

Wagner thinks the men had been hanging around the place since early in the evening, waiting for an opportunity to make the raid. He and O'Gorman heard somebody prowling about the place several times and looked out twice, but could see no one.

somebody prowling about the place several times and looked out twice, but could see no one.

They had almost forgotten the alarms in the early part of the night when about 10:30 o'clock they saw a black face staring through the transom of the front door. It disappeared and almost instantly the door was thrown open and a man with a big pistol ordered them to throw up their hands.

The rifling of the cash drawer and the shooting of O'Gorman followed.

Wagner is certain that the man who did the shooting was not a negro, but a white man with his face artificially blackened. He can give no description of the man who stood guard at the door.

There were two customers in a back room when the crime was committed.

One of them said Thursday that they were drinking beer and first noticed one man come in and ask if Policeman Henry, a new officer on the beat, was around. Wagner said no and the visitor left. A few minutes later two men entered. Their faces were blackened. While one of them stood in the door with a revolver in each hand the other walked behind the counter.

The customers thought it was a joke and looked calmly on. O'Gorman reached over the counter for the robber who was behind and there was a pistol shot. Then the customers ran out of the house.

Isaac Dempsey and John Gass were arrested at 2 p. m. at Clifton Heights on suspicion of having been the burglars. George Cloggot of Benton has identified Goss as one of the men seen skulking around Wednesday night. A razor was found on Dempsey.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 31.—Gov. LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 31.—Gov. Clarke received a telegram at noon to-day from Col. George Murphy, attorney for Fitzsimmons, saying that he would not be able to reach Little Rock until late this afternoon, and requesting him to delay the proceedings in the court until his arrival. The Governor had a consultation with Chancellor Martin, who readily agreed to postpone the hearing. In response to an inquiry as to what time the case would come up for a hearing, Gov. Clarke said: "There is no hurry about this matter, Fitzsimmons is here and Corbett and Brady will no doubt put in an appearance later on. I don't expect them in Little Rock before 8 o'clock this evening. They are having some sort of a trial in Hot Springs, and Corbett and his manager will not leave before that is over. There is no hurry about the matter so far as the courts of this city are concerned. There are so many issues involved that I don't think the cases will be reached before Monday. You can't tell anything about the courts you know."

This morning the club agents announced to those who had purchased tickets for the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight that they would be good until Nov. 1.

Events of the Trial Make No Impression Upon the Prisoner.

MRS. PITEZEL'S SAD STORY.

The Bereaved Woman Tells the Jury of Her Eventful Relations With the Man on Trial.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 31.-When the PHILADELPHIA, Ps., Oct. II.—When the privileged persons had been permitted to enter the court room in which the trial of Holmes is proceeding there appeared to be almost as many we men as men present. Most of them had seats in the space usually reserved for witnesses.

Holmes, as calm and unmoved as ever, was placed in the dock at 10 o'clock. His counsel promptly went to him and a long and earnest colloquy ensued. Holmes did most of the talking and was apparently offering suggestions or perhaps giving orders. He appeared to be brighter and more cheerful than at any time since the trial began, and after his counsel had resumed their seats, he chatted and laughed with two court officers stationed next to the little cage in which he sat.

The first witness of the day proved to be a lively one. This was Sidney L. Samuels, a member of the bar of Fort Worth, Tex., a young, cleanly shaven man, with a twinkling eye and much-self-possession. He spoke quickly and shapply, and invariably referred to Holme as "The Individual." This amused eyen Holmes, who smiled broadly whenever the term was used. District Attorney Graham produced the note identified by Mrs. Pitezel yesterday as the one Holmes pretended to pay at the St. Louis bank, and for which purpose he took $5,000 from her. Mr. Samuels said the body of the note was in his handwriting. In the latter part of April or early in May, 18M, he said, there was in Fort Worth a man known as H. M. Pratt. It was "this individual." He was overseeing the erection of a three-story structure, as agent for Benton T. Lyman, the supposed owner. Pratt came to the witness and tried to negotiate a loan for $16,000 by mortgaging the property, and after some transactions the note was drawn up an asecond note similar to this. The note was originally drawn to the order of P. S.

Subsequently witness had spoken to Miss Yoke, known as Mrs. Howard. She was not the woman he had seen in Williamette. Holmes told the witness he had deposited 1,000 of the insurance company money with a Mr. Blackman of Chicago, his real estate agent, so that "Mrs. Holmes" could draw upon it.

The defense entered a formal objection to all the evidence of Mr. Gerry concerning Miss Yoke, but were overruled. The letter was read to the jury. Two other letters were offered, written by Holmes, one from Columbus to H. M. Cass, Chicago. MRS. PITEZEL'S STORY.

Testimony of the Widow of the Murdered Man.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 31.2-The event of the trial last evening was the story told on the witness stand by Mrs. Carrie A. Pitezel, widow of the murdered man and mother of three children who are supposed to have been killed by Holmes.

Mrs. Pitezel is tail and slender and was dressed in faded black when she took the 18, 1894. My husband said he had a half interest in the Fort Worth property. It was in the name of Benton T. Lyman. Holmes told me this. Lyman was my husband. The Chicago property, he said, was in the name of Perry on account of a Terre Haute trouble."

"Did you have any talk with Holmes about the insurance case before it was carried out?"

"Once he spoke to me about it when he came back from the South, and asked me if Ben had told me about it. I said yes, and I did not want anything to do with it. He said Ben would be home from the South soon; that he was sich down there."

Continuing, Mr. Pitesel said: "I knew Howe through Holmes. By his advice I employed Howe, and save him the power of attorney to collect the money. I don't know who prepared it but Howe brought it to be signed. I have he was a paper that a man named Perry and bene killed by an explosion, but Holmes. By Danier.

"How much did you get in all of this insurance money?"

"I received $500. That was all I ever got."

"After this money transaction what became of Holmes?"

"He took another $100 for the children, who, he said, would need some things in Indianapolis. He went away, and some time afterwards sent me a leater from Detroit to come on there to see my husband."

"Did you see your husband?"

"No. He then sent me to visit my parents at Galva, Ill."

"When I went to Detroit with Dessa and the baby he met us and took us to Geese's European Hotel. I said I expected to hear from the children, and he said they would write in a few days. Holmes registered for me as Mrs. Adams. We remained in Detroit until October 18."

"Did he explain why your husband was not there?"

"He said he had looked all over the town."

"He said he had looked all over the town and could not find a vacant house where it would be convenient to see Ben. In the morning, the 18th, he said we had better go to Toronto. He thought Dessa should join the other children in Indianapolis, where they were in charge of a widow, he said. According to his story he had bought some property there for his wife's mother, but as she was not ready to move into it I could live there free of rent. I asked him the name of the widow my children were with and he said, 'It's a peculiar name; I cannot think of it now.' We went to Toronto, where he also registered me as Mrs. Adams. My husband, he said, was 'In Montral waiting for word to come on.

"One day he brought me a letter from Neille. It was in cipher, and he read it to me, thus: 'Dear Mamma—We are well and going to school, but Howard won't mind Alice. He will get dirty. We have plenty to eat and the woman is real good to us." "We were in Toronto from Octs' is to Oct. 25. Holmes did not stop at the same house with us. I don't know where his different stopping places were. On the afternoon of the 25th he came to the hotel and said he wanted me to hurry and go to Prescott. Canada, and there cross over to Ogdensburg. He wanted to go to some bank and pay off the note due on the Fort Worth property. I got the $5,000, and he took it. We went around to the bank. The money was in $100 bills, all but one old note, a $1,000 bill. He took the money and went to a side window. Then he came back and brought the note, saying it was paid. He told me to take care to show it to Ben when I saw him." IN THE HEAD.

KEEPS POISON OUT.

Poison in the Blood. The Kidneys Filter It Out and Keep the Blood Pure. They Protect Us From Many Dangerous Diseases.

What Happens When They Get Out of Order. How to Cure Them Again.

Most diseases are caused by polson in the blood.

The poison should be kept out.

The kidneys are supposed to do this. That is what they are there for.

And they generally do. But when they are sick they can't; and then we get sick.

The kidneys may get sick from overwork, worry, excess, high living, etc.,

The reason so many of our great men die from Bright's disease is that so many overwork themselves.

Bright's disease is only one of the many diseases the root of which lies in the kidneys.

THE TYLER TRAGEDY.

Culberson Censures the Sheriff for the Burning of the Negro.

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 31.—The following is the text of Gov. Culperson's reply to Sheriff Smith of South County in reference to the burning of the negro:

"John P. Smith, Sheriff, Tyler, Tex.—Your telegram stating that a prisoner had been taken from you, and another that he had been burned on the public square of the City of Tyler, and asking what you should co, were received at short intervals. It was your duty to protect the prisoner at whatever cost. Why did you not do sof Having failed in this, the affair is so violative of all law and so subversive of civil order that nothing should now deter you from the performance of the duty to promptly present all persons engaged in this homicide to the proper examining court and the Grand-jury. In this you should not hesitate or faiter. If any aid is needed from me in the discharge of this duty, it will be fournished to the limit of my authority.

"The crime of the prisoner, if guilty, is the most revolting known to us, but the law provides adequate punishment and a safe and orderly method of determining guilt. (Signed) "C. A. CULBERSON."

OPPOSED TO FIDDLERS. Therefore Farmer Shoults Objects to

George Shoults, a prosperous farmer of user Springs, Jefferson County, Mo., eatens to prosecute Fred Essen, the St. dis. County Recorder, for issuing; a marge license to his daughter; Mary Shoults and Alfred Boly of Manchester. Shoults says at his daughter is under age and that Essen acred Illegally in granting the license. Mary left home on Oct. 11 with Boly to visit the latter's sister, Cora Boly, and promised to return in a few days. Her parents were astonished to learn on Oct. 14 that she had been married to Boly in Clayton by Justice Wengler.

Shoults complained to Prosecuting Attorney Heidorn, but the latter held Recorder Esseen blameless, as the young people made affidavit that they were of age. Shoults doesn't like Boly as a son-in-law, because he says the young man is a fiddler. His New Son in Law.

THE LINCOLN MONUMENT. Said to Be Shell Which Will Soon

Crumble to Pieces.

SPRINGFIELD. Ill., Oct. 31.-The State springfield, ill., Oct. 31.—The State trustees in charge of the Lincoln Monument say that it will soon crumble to pieces if not taken down. It is too far gone to be repaired, and besides its construction is such that it will not admit of repair. Instead of being a substantial pile of solid granite, as external appearances would indicate, it is a rickety structure of brick veneered over with slabs of granite. The Lincoln Monument was completed in October, 1874, and cost $206,500, which amount was raised by popular subscription.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

SEDALIA, Mo., Oct. 31.—At 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon final connection was made with the new extension of the M., K. & T. from Green Ridge to Holden, and the road is now completed. It is 38.8 miles in length and passes through one of the richest portions of the State. There is not a bridge nor a trestle along the line. As soon as the road bed becomes firmer a through passenger service will be put in operation between Sedalia and Kanasa City. The trains will be made up at Sedalia and will connect with the "Katy's" north and south-bound trains at this point. The trains will enter Kansas City via Harrisonville and the K. C., F. S. & M. In the meantime a mixed train will be run from Sedalia to Kansas City. This will be put on in about two weeks. cial to The Post-Dispatch.

Comptroller Sturgeon Will Levy For feiture on the Merchants' Bridge.

There is little comfort for the taxpayers in the present situation of the relations be-tween the city and the Merchants' Bridge. In discussing the matter Thursday Comproller Sturgeon said:

"Maj. Rainwater's reply was about what I expected. I had not the slightest hope that the report would show a surplus that that the report would show a surplus that would entitle the city to participate in it—in fact I never expect to see the day when the city will receive anything in return for the valuable privileges it gave away. Maj. Rainwater virtually admits that if the depot is not completed by April 6, 1896, $6,000 a year will be due the city from Jan. 1, 1894, but when that time comes the company will have discovered a loophole of escape. It is doubtful if we ever get any of that for-felture, neither will the depot ever be built. That such a structure cannot be completed by April is certain.

"As a citizen I would be perfectly willing to let the company enjoy its privileges for nothing had it carried out its promises in other respects. At the time the building of the Merchants' Bridge was first agitated it myself, among others, made speeches representing to the tax payers the great benefit it would be to the city. It was designed to compete with the Eads Bridge and its promotors painted the benefits that would accrue from its erection in bright colors. None of these promises have been kept. As far as can be learned the bridge has joined the monopoly and the city seems in a fair way to be placed in the position of the tax-payers. Until next April I can do

MISS JACQUES' LONG TONGUE.

Twenty of Her Neighbors Have Told How It Wagged. Special to The Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Esther P. Jacques, spinster, of Westfield, N. J., will be ar-raigned in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, in Elizabeth, to-day for sentence on the charge of being a common scold. It was on the testimony of twenty residents of the neighborhood that the indictment against Miss Jacques was found. She is prominent in church and temperance work in the town, being president of the local branch of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. town, being president of the local branch of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. The principal complainant against Miss Jacques is C. F. Conant, an ex-Town Committeeman, who lives next door to the Jacques. One night last June Miss Jacques began scolding her sister in those high, piercing shrieks that had so often made the neighbors shut their windows and doors. She seemed more vehement than ever and scoided incessanily for an hour. At the end of this time, Mr. Conant's patience gave out and he went over to the Jacques' house. He was admitted, but his efforts to quiet Miss Jacques had no effect. She kept up her tirade against her sister, who would occasionally give her an angry answer. Finally Mr. Conant pulled out his watch and told Miss Jacques that he would give her just ten minutes in which to stop her tongue. Miss Jacques paid no attention to him and continued shrieking and screaming at her sister. Mr. Conant went out and got Justice Hart to go to the house with him. Under a threat of arrest Miss Jacques quieted down.

Outbreaks of this kind occurred two or three times a week and became unbearable, Mr. Conant said. His statements were corroborated by other witnesses. What the sentence of the court will 'e no one ventures to guess.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Just before moon yesterday a small, nervous looking man walked into the middle of the street at Broadway and Thirty-first street and removed his shoes and stockings, his white shirt and his sack coat, which he placed in a little pile on the uptown car track. He then attempted to remove his undershirt, but the screams of women and cries of men evidentily scared him, for he quickly picked up a blanket he carried, wrapped himself in it, laid down and was apparently sound asleep when a policeman yanked him

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Dr. Parkhurst has a double in the political field who looks enough like the great reformer to pass for that individual himself. More than one good citizen has been horrified to see the minister, as he thought, drinking beer with a crowd of convivial Germans and orating for the cause of the Garoo.

George Juraschek, a middle-aged citizen, prominently identified with the German press of this city, is the other Parkhurst, see far as outward appearances go. When wearing spectacles and a white tie and photographed in any of the reformer's favorite poses, Juraschek is the living counterpart of the minister.

Parkhurst II, is not as large as the man who bearded the tiger in its lair, but still, he is often mistaken for the other. While riding in the cars Mr. Juraschek done a tall hat, assumes a solemn cast of countenance and enjoys watching the passengers nudge each other and whisper: "There's Parkhurst."
